Reducing the Effects of 20 years

Everyone has a special event that they want to look their best for. For me, that event was my 20 year high school reunion. I had known it was coming. (It isn't as though I had forgotten when I graduated). But that reminder in the mail, confirming that it had, in fact, been 20 years since high school was still a shock to me. I live some distance from my alma mater in Utah and at first I had decided that I would use that as an excuse for not attending. However, after some consideration, (and a bit of begging by my best friend) I figured that it would be nice to spend a little time with those old friends that I hadn't seen, outside of their facebook photo albums, in quite some time. After the plane tickets were purchased my next thought was on making sure I was looking my best.
